My local file and development server has popped its electronic clogs, so I am currently unable to access any of the files on it to be able to work on any of my modules.

I don't think any files have been lost, but I won't be sure until I have set up another machine to get the files off of the hard drive. There is a backup, but it's not recent (yeah, I know...)

Anyway, right now, I don't know when I'll be able to resume work on them.
